Can Make You Feel Unstoppable During An Orangetheory WorkoutWe all have days when it's a struggle to maintain our regular Base pace or reach the number of watts we usually hit on the rowing machine

. But, have you ever noticed how just one misstep in the weight room can sometimes throw off the rest of your class?trueFebruary 3, 2025Read moreFitnessWorried about your post-pandemic fitness level? Here's how to get back to your base pace safely and sanelyWith many Orangetheory Fitness studios reopening after months of being closed, you may be feeling mixed emotions. On one hand -- Hooray! It'll be great to be back in the groove, to see coaches and classmates I haven't seen since March! On the other hand -- Yikes! What if I can't keep up? What if I've lost everything, I worked so hard to attain? First, know that hope is far from lost (as you'll see in the tips below)

While Orangetheory's free online At Home™ workouts will continue for those who are not able to return to the studio just yet, more than 900 locations are already welcoming members back.trueFebruary 3, 2025Read moreMotivationWorkout To Music: 5 Ways Music Motivates Your WorkoutImagine heading into an Orangetheory class only to find no music playing over the speakers. Instead, you spend the next 60 minutes listening to your own heavy breathing as your feet hit the treadmill or you propel yourself forward on the rowing machine. No matter the number of Splat Points displayed on the board at the end of class, you probably won't feel like you had a satisfying workout. That's because music is more than just background noise—it's a motivator
